E-COMMERCE/DIGITAL TRADE

With the rapid development of the network economy and e-commerce, as well as the rapid progress of digital information and communication technology, the proportion of cross-border e-commerce (i.e. digital trade) in international trade of goods and services is growing faster and faster. Multilateral, plurilateral and bilateral trade negotiations on rulemaking for e-commerce Digital Trade between the World Trade Organization and its members are accelerating with a number of agreements signed.

The legal team consists of partners and specialized consultants providing advice to companies, advocacy groups, and government agencies. The legal advice includes advising on the WTO e-commerce negotiation, and on the impact of multilateral and bilateral digital trade agreements on Chinese industries and sectors.
